4. Working with the knowledge of the material qualities of oil paint and it's drying time.
5. Working with various color and textural grounds.

STUDENT CONTRIBUTIONS AND COURSE POLICIES

Class activities and assignments: Demonstrations from the instructor will generally be conducted at the beginning of classes on Mondays. Many different approaches will be featured and the technical end of oil will be discussed and questions answered. A list of suggested assignments will be given to you for your consideration. These will not be of a technical nature but will deal with subject matter. Originality and freshness of subjects will be discussed. The student will be expected to outline at least three works in oil to be accomplished during the semester. If the student is working small in scale, more works will be expected.

EVALUATION OF STUDENTS

Attendance—since demonstrations cannot be repeated for absentees, your attendance is very important. Please keep me informed about situations that might take you out of the class. If you are working for a degree, please be aware that after three absences, we need to sit down and discuss your continuation in this course. Attendance is important because this is the perfect time block for you to do needed work to achieve good paintings and a good grade.

Studio Conversations—please be aware that this time period may be the only one available to some of your fellow students. Therefore, please be careful not to launch into conversations that create distractions and/or upset those who have no choice but to listen. Art related conversations are understandable but keep the animated or emotional conversations out of the studio. Please help me on this issue and clue me in if someone is bothering you.

DETERMINATION OF GRADES

This instructor will assign grades (A, B, C, D & F) usually with student input. The final grade will be determined by the instructor. Final paintings and/or projects will replace a written final. However, you MUST be present for critique the week of finals unless you have made a previous arrangement.

The “A” Painting—this work has the excitement of a good oil work on canvas. The idea is original, composition and colors are well handled, and the surface and brushwork is consistent. Many options have been considered and a series of good choices made that together create an appealing image. Contours have been softened or broken and color shifted when passages allow. Scale is right, that is, this work is not too small and cramped or on the other hand, the work is not too large and broad-brushed.

The “B” Painting—this work displays technical confidence but may lack somewhat in originality or in its willingness to experiment with technique such as brushwork. This painting might work but lacks final sparkle or may be overworked in places. Perhaps the work isn't technical consistent.

The “C” Painting—this work might begin with good intentions but fails to move along to a good completion. Perhaps scale is problematical and maybe brush work is too smooth or unexciting. Color may go flat or be somewhat boring. The potential of good painting isn’t realized and is only passable at best.

The “D” Painting—this work comes close to failing. Color may be murky or dirty. Scale isn’t fully considered and possible details picked at. Composition may be bad and brush work awkward or inconsistent. Contours may be hard and heavy-handed.

The “F” Painting—in this work everything goes wrong. Color is bad, composition is strained or cramped, the subject may be from someone else. The surface may be either impossibly thick or on the other hand, too smoothed out. A work that is not finished may also fall under this grade.

Assignments will be monitored with the instructor. Student is expected to furnish subject matter and material. This request differs from the norm in a workshop. Instructor will assist student and give helpful comments during each session. Instructor will attempt to “visit” student at least three times per session. Also remember that Friday is open for free studio work and instructor is available to answer questions and solve problems. Students should assist in cleaning up after each paint session.

DROP / WITHDRAWAL

The student is responsible for initiating a drop or withdrawal, not the instructor.

Withdrawal from course: The instructor is not able to withdraw a student from the course after the census date. A student wishing to withdraw must fill out the withdrawal form in MyMCPortal.
